* 8 AM Wednesday
Young orioles in same place as last evening. O#1 in maple O#2 base of dogwood tree.

10 A.M. Wed. I dismantled standing feeder as squirrel was on it. Poor guy! looking up & all over for his feed supply. 2 here now. Scrounging ground for food. Looking up at top-line perch - standing, stretching.* I hope to send them back to the woods. 4:15 Put feeder back until eve. * up pyracantha to roof-looking.

2:45 P.M. Baby O.#2 in thick growth at base of dogwood, being fed by mother. (Checked on maple tree a few times, but no father feeding Baby O #1. So conclude he was led to woods sometime before 11 A.M. or 11:30 when I went for mail). I sat in view of B.O. # 2 until 2:45. At 3:45 (after siesta) I was sad - O#2 was not in the growth. What's that climbing making like a nuthatch up the tulip tree trunk? no limbs, no nothing — yup! O#2. He is now on lowest limb. He was so newly arrived that Mother went to the Dogwood bare twice. Quickly went to limb. Did little fella come by surface all the way from dogwood to tulip tree - or hop fly hop?

Mother "O" exclusively feeds O#2. I have not seen father since the 2 or 3 feedings this A.M. No action whatever at nest. Pa many times from A.M, esp. from 11: to 2 I noted mother flew to O#2 - immed. "showed him the way" toward tulip tree, or Dogwood beyond. Sometimes I knew there was no food -- every half minute - why else did he fly to the tulip tree, and not the other direction? It seemed she was encouraging him, starving him(?). Now he is high and prob. safe. 5PM Has been sleeping since about 4:40 - head tucked in wing. I can see him clearly from front door. Baby still on limb at dusk. He is on first limb of Tulip tree in full view so I may enjoy him.

5:05 PM Chipmunk at base of standing feeder. Cats in all day - O#2 might yet fall. Dow Jones up 8.

Highway Damage Over $13-Million

The Virginia Highway Department estimates that flood damage to state highways now totals $13.2 million.

Besides bridges which were destroyed or damaged, some 600 miles of roadway were under water.

Of the 103 bridges washed out or damaged, only 24 remain closed.

In Northern Virginia, temporary repairs to the bridge on Georgetown Pike in Fairfax County are expected to be completed by mid-July. A new bridge will have to be built across the Occoquan River (Rte. 123) at Occoquan. It was in the planning stage before the flood.
